

EPIISODE 1

Lucky Undies

Educators

The learning documents for each episode are a spring-board for engaging with and embedding Indigenous perspectives and pedagogies in early childhood environments. The following ideas have been developed to engage educators and children in diverse ways. The intention to provide a starting point and educators are encouraged to:

- Engage with local and broader Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander communities to learn from and with their communities.
- Engage with local and broader Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander communities to build authentic relationships.
- Consider the transitions that take place in children's lives every day and our role as educators to work with children and families to support them during this time. The moments of transition can be big events such as the transition from early childhood into Primary school, coming from home into Kinder every day or from one learning experience to another in the early learning environment.
- Consider the spaces in your indoor and outdoor environments and the possibilities of the key ideas of Indigenous knowledge and culture and how these can build on current understandings and create new learning opportunities with children, families and community.
- Engage with your local community to grow a language that shares and respects the voices of Indigenous peoples, their knowledge and their cultures.

Synopsis

Little J's new undies have special powers - so how can he play basketball without them?.

After a run of good luck, especially the chance to play in the big kids' basketball game, Levi convinces Little J that his bright new undies have special powers. So how can Little J possibly play after Old Dog chews the Lucky Undies to bits?

What do we see happening for Little J during his transition to school?

In this episode we see Little J participating in a game of basketball and helping his friend to present his science experiment that was made at home. Little J is learning that these experiences are a part of the curriculum in the school. The teacher, Ms Chen, has engaged the assistance of the parents to share their skills with the children within the school, and we see family supporting each other during these times. Ms Chen also recognises that Little J likes to try many things and she sees this as a strength.

Programmatic elements integral to high quality transition programs:

1. Broad focus on child development that prioritises capacity to learn over specific knowledge
2. Targeted approach to building children familiarity and relationships with school
3. Family engagement and involvement throughout the transition process. (pg4, SNAICC, 2014)

WORKING WITH ABORIGINAL WORLDVIEWS, KNOWLEDGES AND COMMUNITIES IN EARLY CHILDHOOD EDUCATION

EARLY YEARS LEARNING CURRICULUM: INDOOR & OUTDOOR ENVIRONMENTS

The suggested learning experiences can be in both the indoor and outdoor learning environments.

- Invite children to participate in a dramatic play experience of acting out a part of the storyline from the episode. In this episode it could be the part of the story where Little J is feeling down about losing his lucky undies, or when he scores the goal at the end of the game.
- Create or co-create a space that shares the key learning experiences or interests arising from the viewing of a particular episode. For this episode it could be intentional conversations to explore the interests arising from the viewing of the specific episode or it could be a discussion around:
 - basketball and other games children play.
 - traditional games from Indigenous peoples (see: Yulunga: Traditional Indigenous Games Resource Package. 2009).
 - what is good luck?
 - magpies on Country.
 - science on Country.
 - science in the home and specifically experiments we can do at home.
 - (These conversations can also be extended to become inquiry projects).
- Create a tracking game to play in pairs, small groups or whole class group (for examples of games see: Yurri's Birthday by Sue Atkinson and Annette Sax; or Yulunga: Traditional Indigenous Games. 2009)
